

It isn't my habit to remind government agencies what their job is, but I feel the FCC is letting the American public down in a significant way.

As you may know, Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation and partisan control of our Democratic process.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our society's health.

Please take it upon yourself to reverse the trend of media consolidation. Start by reigning in Sinclair.
